

Sarawak Cabinet Remuneration: Total Salary and Allowances (as of December 2025)

Exact total figures for Sarawak's Premier, Deputy Premiers, Cabinet Ministers, and Deputy Ministers (including all allowances) are not publicly itemized in detail, as the state government discloses basic salaries more transparently while treating certain perks (e.g., housing, travel, entertainment) as confidential for security and operational reasons.

Remuneration is governed by the Members of the Administration and Members of Dewan Undangan Negeri (Remuneration, Pensions and Gratuities) Ordinance 2013 (Chapter 68), which outlines basic salaries and mandates additional allowances/benefits but doesn't specify exact add-ons.

Based on the latest available data (from Sarawak LawNet, DUN records, and 2024–2025 budget announcements), here's a breakdown. No changes were announced in the 2026 Budget (tabled Nov 2025) for political leaders' pay—unlike civil servants, who received SSPA adjustments and bonuses. Figures are monthly unless noted; totals include basic salary + standard allowances (e.g., sitting, constituency, medical). Variable perks like official cars (with drivers/fuel, valued ~RM5,000–RM10,000/month equivalent) and gratuities (end-of-term lump sums) are estimated based on patterns from federal/state disclosures. Deputy Ministers (formerly Assistant Ministers; renamed 2022) are not full Cabinet members but assist ministers and receive scaled-down remuneration.

Monthly Total Remuneration Breakdown

Position	Basic Salary (RM)	Key Allowances (RM)	Estimated Total Monthly (RM)	Annual Equivalent (RM)	Notes

Position	Basic Salary (RM)	Key Allowances (RM)	Estimated Total Monthly (RM)	Annual Equivalent (RM)	Notes
Ordinary ADUN (for context; non-ministers)	15,000	- Constituency/Sitting: 3,000–5,000 - Other: 2,000	20,000– 25,000	240,000– 300,000	Highest state assembly pay in Malaysia; ministers/deputies get uplift on this base.

Key Explanations and Additional Perks

- How Totals Are Estimated: Basic salaries from Ordinance Chapter 68 (e.g., Premier RM30,000; Deputies ~RM25,000+; Ministers ~RM20,000+; Deputy Ministers ~RM15,000+ as extension of ADUN pay). Allowances drawn from federal analogs (Members of Parliament Remuneration Act) and state disclosures—e.g., entertainment allowances for official functions, travel for state duties. No 2025 increases for these roles; civil servants got RM400–RM700 special allowances + 2-month bonus (Dec 2025 announcement), but not politicians.
- Non-Cash Benefits (not in totals but significant value):
 - Official residence/quarters (or housing allowance).
 - Vehicles + fuel/drivers (~RM50,000–RM100,000 annual value).
 - Medical coverage for family + staff.
 - End-of-term gratuity (e.g., 3–6 months' salary) + contributory pension after 5 years' service.
- No Recent Changes: 2026 Budget focused on civil servants (7% raise, RM56M allocation) and community leaders (+RM400/month from 2026). Sarawak's oil/gas revenues keep pay competitive, but critics note opacity.
- Comparison: Sarawak leaders earn more than federal counterparts (PM basic RM22,827; federal ministers RM14,907, post-20% cut). Total for Sarawak Premier rivals Singapore ministers (~SGD 55,000/month basic, but with bonuses).
